WIKING kicks off the spring with model creativity: the legendary Range Rover celebrates its premier as an emergency vehicle, while the Magirus round hood rolls into the range as an historic fire engine. Then there is a second Magirus S 3500 with flatbed and loading crane, which was already announced as a new item back in 1964 and is now being realised. The Magirus evokes the 1960s with the refrigerated box trailer of the Swiss retail chain "Migros". Recreational fun is symbolised by the Land Rover Defender 110 and forever-young VW T2 camper van – iconic with checked curtains and roof rack, of course. WIKING is also presenting the VW Amarok GP with its face lift in the "Highline" design. Agricultural fans can look forward to new items on a small and large scale: while the Claas Xerion 5000 with twin tyres appears on 1:87 scale, the John Deere 7310R comes as a top-of-the-range tractor on a precision agricultural scale of 1:32. The finely detailed model has the familiar finesse in the cab and on the chassis, and the wheels can be removed as required, just like on the original. The N-gauge receives support in the form of the HR 18 mini-excavator in TWH livery.

Experience living history on 1:87 scale! The Büssing 12.000 covered many kilometres in the early 1950s in the livery of the "Braunschweig" truck manufacturer in order to test road handling on long-distance journeys. Now WIKING has granted the historic test vehicle a special themed edition, which also includes the chassis that at the time was only supplied to that superstructure manufacturer, along with the corresponding Büssing ballast weights for the test vehicle. A matching cargo set in coordinating colours is also available. Not only that, WIKING has achieved a bridge to the times by bringing back to life the tram, which advertises Berlin-based brewer "Schultheiss". The Unimog U 411 in "W&W Holzbau" livery, the Fendt equipment carrier and the John Deere 2016 with its unmistakable Lanz genes evoke the daily agricultural and forestry work of those times. The legendary Ford Mustang appears in attractive matt black with flame decoration, while the VW Beetle represents the fun that can be had driving today. The Meiller three-way tipper in typical municipal orange on the Mercedes-Benz Arocs chassis can be attached to a matching tipper trailer as required. The model upgrades are rounded off by the caravans on a scale 1:160.
